TO THE PUBLIC.

When we consider the personal qualities of the statesmen whose names are affixed to the Declaration of Independence, the perilous occasion which demanded the exertion of their wisdom and deliberation, and the influence of their councils on the interests of mankind, we must acknowledge that very rarely a more imposing spectacle has been offered to the world, and we shall seek in vain in the annals of nations, for an event more worthy of commemoration, and of being cherished forever in the hearts of a grateful and generous people. The love of independence is interwoven with the frame and constitution of the human mind. It is almost the first sentiment that animates the infant's features in the cradle; and amongst all the actions and enterprizes of man, none has awaked into activity a greater exertion of the virtuous energies of his nature, none has excited a greater warmth of veneration, and has more imperious claims upon our gratitude, than resistance to tyranny and political aggression.

In all republican states the first tribute of genius has been paid to the patriot or the hero who has promoted the cause of liberty and maintained the independence and dignity of man. The animated canvas and breathing marble have rescued his features from the grasp of death, and the pen of the historian has inscribed the achievements to the imperishable records of fame. It would indeed be no favorable prognostic of the perpetuity of our republican institutions to discover an insensibility to the obligations we owe the memory of the illustrious patrons of American freedom. They have raised us, by their magnanimity, from the arbitrary dominion of a foreign power, to the distinguished elevation of a sovereign and independent people; they have asserted and maintained the imprescriptible rights of humanity by the "mutual pledge of their pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors;" and, as long as virtue holds her empire in the hearts of their successors, the example of these generous benefactors will not be lost to the world; their names will not pass away nor be forgotten, or their glorious deeds be confounded in the common and casual transaction of life.—Ingratitude is a vice that in nations, as well as individuals, indicates the last degree of degeneracy and corruption; it is a vice that implies the absence of every virtue; it was in the age of Caligula that the name of the Scipios was proscribed, that the state of Brutus brought death on its possessor.

"The glory of our ancestors is the light of posterity," and the homage of the living cannot be offered to the merits of the illustrious dead with an effectual or sterile admiration. Great and splendid actions will seldom be achieved by men who have humble or ordinary objects in prospect. It is by contemplating the life and character of those who are marked out from the multitude by their eminent qualities, that we become emulous of their virtues and their renown. The trophies of Miltiades interrupted the sleeps of Themistocles; and Theseus, bearing the exploits of Hercules, was fired with his spirit, and became the successful rival of his fame. The rude savage of the desert listens with rapture to the deeds of his ancestors, and hangs around his hut the emblems of his father's valour.

More need not be said to enforce the utility of the publication we have undertaken, and which we now submit to the patronage of our fellow-citizens, with a hope, that from the liberality of their encouragement, we shall be able to present it to the public worthy of their approbation. We must depend for the illustration of many of the characters of our biography, upon the generosity of their surviving relatives and friends, to furnish us with whatever interesting materials may be in their possession; for which, with our grateful acknowledgments, we promise a copy of the entire work as a compensation.

CONDITIONS.

I. The work will be published in numbers or half volumes of 200 pages, octavo, and contained in ten numbers. To the first will be prefixed an appropriate frontis-piece—and the work will be commenced with the declaration of independence, with engraved fac similes of the signatures, and a compendious detail of the proceedings of congress, during the passage of the law. Each of the lives, unless when it is impracticable, will be preceded by a likeness of the person, engraved by the best artists in the United States.

II. It will be printed on fine paper, made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per number, payable on delivery.

THE TIME PIECE.

BY JAMES MONTGOMERY.

Who is HE, who swiftly flying?
His career no eye can see,
Who are THEY, so early dying?
From their birth they cease to be.
TIME;—behold his pictured race!
MOMENTS;—can you count their race?

Though with aspect deep-dissembling,
Here he feigns unconscious sleep,
Round and round his circle trembling,
Day and night his symbols creep,
While unseen, through earth and sky,
His unweary pinions ply.

Hark! what petty pulses beating,
Spring new moments into light:
Every pulse, its strokes repeating,
Sends its moments back to night;
Yet not one of all the train
Comes uncall'd, or flits in vain.

In the highest realms of glory,
Spirits trace, before the throne,
On eternal scrolls the story
Of each little moment flown;
Every deed, and word, and thought,
Through the whole creation wrought.

Were the volume of a minute
Thus to mortal sight unroll'd,
More of sin and sorrow in it,
More of man might we behold,
Than on history's broadest page,
In the relics of an age.

Who could bear the revelation?
Who abide the sudden test?
—With instructive consternation,
Hands would cover every breast;
Loudest tongues at once be hushed,
Pride in all its writhings crushed.

Who with leer malign exploring,
On his neighbor's shame dost look?
Would not each, intensely poring
On that record in the book,
Which his utmost soul reveal'd,
Wish its leaves for ever seal'd?

SELECT PARAGRAPHS.

True honor results from the secret satisfaction of our minds, and is decreed both by religion and the suffrages of wise men—it is the shadow of wisdom and virtue, and is inseparable from them.

The principal, if not the only difference betwixt men of honesty and honor seems to lie in their different motives—the object of the latter being reputation, and of the former duty.

Superiority in wit is more frequently the cause of vanity than superiority of judgment; as the person that wears an ornamental sword is ever more vain than he that wears an useful one.

Man is only weak by the disproportion there is betwixt what he can, and what he is willing to do: the only way he has to increase his strength is to retrench many of his desires.

Almost all of us make ourselves unhappy by too much forecast.

Nature accustoms us to suffer from our infancy, in order to teach us to suffer.

ANECDOTES.

Marivaux, the author of a three act comedy, called Love and Truth, said, on leaving a box where he had sat incognito during its representation, which had little effect, 'that it was the most tiresome piece he had ever seen, and that he himself was the author of it.'

When Voltair's tragedy of Alzira was first performed in 1736, it was reported by many persons that it was not the work of Voltaire. —"I hope the report is true," observed a wit. "Why?" asked another. "Because, (replied the former) we shall then have two good poets instead of one."

The fat Stephen Kemble was one day mentioning in company something he had done, for which he was likely to be hauled over the coals. "Then, (said Ralph Wewitzer,) all the fat would be in the fire."

The Marshal de Beauveau relates, that some persons were conversing in his presence of the negligence shown in military hospitals in ascertaining whether the person is really dead—so that it often happened that people were buried alive. An old lieutenant colonel said, "General I assure you this is a great exaggeration; I have seen these things close at hand, and I can answer for it, that the greater part of those who are buried, are certainly dead."

A commander of Sillery lying at the point of death, heard two of his friends dispute on the merit of some wines—he raised his feeble voice, saying, "Gentlemen, I suspend my opinion, to tell you that Sillery wine is infinitely more delicate."

ALEXANDRIA:
FRIDAY MORNING, December 10.

PREVENTION OF SLAVERY.

A very numerous meeting was held in Boston on Friday last, to take into consideration the measures necessary to be adopted to prevent the further extension of slavery in the United States. The assemblage embraced most of the men of eminence in that and the neighboring counties, and a large number of the clergy. The discussion is said to have been eloquent and able. Among the speakers were Jas. Prince, esq. marshal of the district, hon. Messrs. Austin, Webster, Blake, and Quincey. The following report of a committee was read, and the resolutions accompanying it, unanimously adopted.

REPORT.

The extirpation of slavery has never ceased to be regarded as a measure deeply concerning the honor and safety of the United States. The existence of this practice is to be ascribed to the policy of the government to which their ancestors were subject, and not to their own choice. But to omit any precaution that might afford a reasonable hope of relieving them, however gradually, both from the burden and the reproach, would have justly exposed them to the charge of nourishing the evil, which they did not create. The constitution therefore contained a provision shewing evidently the design, that at a future period the increase of slaves by importation should be prohibited. Subsequent laws have carried this provision into effect. In whatever tends to diminish the evil of slavery, or to check its growth, all parts of the confederacy are alike interested. In the states, where it chiefly exists to devise some secure and certain plan of deliverance from its effects has been the earnest wish of enlightened and reflecting men. The same feelings and views induced congress, when territories were received as a part of our empire, to impose on them a restriction intended to preserve them from that calamity, which afflicted the older states. Of this restriction they have enjoyed the benefit, and they now exult in the moral and political advantages derived from a free population. And when we consider the unanimity with which congress adopted the ordinance of 1787, that first constitutional prohibition of slavery in modern times, every state south of the Potomac being present and voting unanimously in its favor, we are encouraged to believe, that a policy so wise and humane will not now be departed from. But it seems to us, that nothing could be more opposite to this policy, than the opening of an almost boundless country to the unlimited importation of slaves from other states. The newly acquired territory would thus be burthened with all the mischiefs, which are too well known to be the sure results of slavery; an evil, which has long been deplored, would be incalculably augmented; the whole confederacy would be weakened and our free institutions disgraced by the voluntary extension of a practice repugnant to all the principles of free government, and the continuance of which in any part of our country necessity alone has justified.

To those, who are making efforts to prevent the extension of slavery it is a source of equal pride and pleasure to know, that they are countenanced and supported by characters most venerable in those states, in which it is not yet abolished; and if to these are added the fervent wishes of their fellow citizens in other states, the appeal, we trust, will not be disregarded. It is therefore Resolved, As the opinion of this meeting, that the congress of the United States possesses the constitutional power upon the admission of any new state created beyond the limits of the original territory of the United States, to make the prohibition of the further extension of slavery or involuntary servitude, in such new state, a condition of its admission.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this meeting, it is just and expedient, that this power should be exercised by congress upon the admission of all new states created beyond the original limits of the United States.

The steam ship Savannah, capt. Rogers, arrived at Savannah on the 30th of November, in 50 days from St. Petersburg, Russia. She touched at Copenhagen, Arundel and Norway. Brought no news.

REFORM MEETING IN NEW-YORK.

A meeting of Englishmen took place in the city of New-York on the 1st inst. to take into consideration the state of their country and the affair of Manchester. Mr Charles Barker was appointed chairman, who opened the meeting in the following speech:

Gentlemen—I feel myself unable to express those acknowledgements which the honor conferred upon me demands; but, I trust, my conduct may be such as to meet your approbation, and claim your further confidence. As it devolves upon me as a duty to state the object of our present assemblage, I shall endeavor to do so in as concise, but explicit a manner as I am able.

The object of this meeting is to take into consideration the proceedings of the late meeting at Manchester, where, we are informed, a band of lawless murderers committed an outrage upon an orderly, defenceless and innocent people, which would congeal the blood of men, even by its simple relation. In examing the particulars thereof, we have to lament that neither age nor sex could impede the fury of those barbarous ravagers; but the hoary headed veteran was mowed to the ground and trampled upon, and helpless women with their babes at their breasts, were doomed to share the same cruel fate.

I, therefore, trust, that we, as Englishmen, bound by the ties of kindred, country and humanity, will be ready, upon this occasion, to show to the world that we still possess those manly and sympathetic feelings which have so long been the true characteristics of our country.

An address prepared for the occasion was then read, expressing in patriotic language their feelings of the meeting, and pledging the pecuniary aid of the British subjects in this country to relieve the distresses occasioned by the massacre at Manchester.

George Clark was on the 1st inst. arraigned before the Circuit Court of the U. States for piracy. He was the commander of the piratical ship Louisa, destroyed off this harbor, and which had committed the most unexampled depredations on the ship Boston and brig Joseph, of Boston, and the brig Charles, of New-York, while at anchor in the roadstead of the Isle of May, on the 30th Nov. 1818. Captain Finlay, of the ship Boston, is the principal evidence against him.

Several seamen of the Louisa are also in confinement in the jail in this city, awaiting their trial. [Charleston Courier.

GENERAL BANKRUPT LAW.

At a special meeting lately held at the Chamber of Commerce of the city of Philadelphia, the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That it is expedient to memorialize Congress, at the ensuing season, to establish Uniform Systems of Bankruptcy for the United States.

Resolved, That a memorial suitable to the above object, be prepared, under the direction of the officers of the Chamber, to be subscribed by them, and forwarded to Congress.

John Baptist Arismendi has been appointed vice president of the republic of Venezuela, in the place of the hon. Francis Antonio Zea, resigned. Arismendi has issued a proclamation, which declares that in consideration of the exhausted state of the national treasury, and to meet the necessary expenses of war, that hereafter all hides of black cattle, whoever may be their owners, are declared to belong to the state.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

The newspaper printed at Uniontown, in Fayette cy. Pa. says that more than 400 persons in that neighborhood, had recently joined the Methodist Society. It is added as remarkable, that at one meeting, more than 60 adults were batized.

DARING ATTEMPT AT ROBBERY.

The Franklin Gazette mentions, that last week a black man rang at the door of a dwelling in Philadelphia—and as a female of the family opened the door, he knocked her down and passed up stairs. Another of the family came to the door and rallied the neighbors. The villian was found concealed in an upper room, was taken before a magistrate, and committed to prison.

SINGULAR ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.

Last week the hat and pocket book of a man from Vermont, were found on Cambridge bridge, near Boston. As the man was missed from his lodgings, it was first apprehended that he had either been robbed & murdered, or had drowned himself. On farther examination, however, it appears, as stated in the Boston Daily Advertiser, that this man, after placing his hat and pocket book, in a situation calculated to deceive his creditors, "took passage in one of the southern stages under an assumed name, arrived in New-York on Saturday last in the steam boat Connecticut, with a considerable sum of money and a small bundle, his only baggage. He left New-York the same day in the steam-boat line for Philadelphia, said to be on his way to the Alabama Territory.—We understand that he had purchased a quantity of Beef in the country, for which he had engaged to pay an extravagant price, & that no doubt exists of his intention to defraud his creditors. He has left a wife and child in Vermont, and has been heretofore considered a respectable man. His property in Vermont has been attached by his creditors, and means have been taken to have him apprehended. [N. Y. Com. Adv.

VENTRILOQUISM.

We have not repeated any of the numerous anecdotes published in the Eastern papers, concerning the extraordinary powers of MR. CHARLES, nor any of the whimsical adventures incident to his exercise of that faculty on various occasions: indeed they appear too marvellous to be creditable, and we resolved not to give them any currency until we should have actual experience of the eye and ear. On Thursday evening Mr. Charles presented himself to public curiosity, in the elegant assembly room of Mr. Labbe, in Library street, and to a very numerous and elegant auditory.

After a course of very uncommon and ingenious tours d'addresse, with Mechanical and other contrivances, much to the surprise and amusement of his auditors, his first act being closed, he signified that his second act should consist of illusions of Ventriloquism; and the astonishment excited, verified those numerous adventures of which so many have been narrated in the public papers.

A folding screen was placed on the platform, on which he exhibited, and he prefaced his illusions, by informing the audience that the faculty by which he produced the various gradations of voice, articulation, and speech, without the aid of the lips or tongue, was generally supposed to be the effect of some peculiar organization of the glottis, or passages between the throat and lungs; that still it was a subject which the physiologist and anatomist could not clearly define, and that it remained only to be reduced to a theory by analogy, and realised in the practice of those who possessed it without the power of teaching others.

He then proceeded to state that he should first exemplify this faculty by a conversation in the French language, between three different persons; and he commenced by calling upon a servant, who answered in a coarse voice, and coarse French; the second gentleman spoke next; and then the first, and a dialogue was continued for some minutes in which the different personages spoke with the utmost rapidity, and unbroken consonance of the voice and style of the different characters; the screen which stood on the platform served as an agent, from behind which the voice of the interlocutors appeared to be more or less loud, as the folds of the screen were opened or shut.

His second exercise was equally curious and astonishing—he signified to the audience, that the voice should be next made to proceed apparently from the ceiling, from any corner of the room, from the orchestra, from the chimney, or from beneath the floor—and he proceeded to call upon John to come up out of the cellar, and John seemed to answer from beneath the floor, that he would come immediately; but not coming, he was called upon with anger, and he answered with resentment, "how the devil could he get out of that place—he could not make a hole through the floor?"—he was then desired to remove to another place, and so Mr. Charles proceeded round the circle of auditors, calling upon John to come up in each place, and he answering distinctly, as if at that very place, beneath the floor. In one instance, the voice was so close and apparent under one of the benches, that the ladies and gentlemen moved to make way for John.

He then directed John since he could not come through the floor, to make his way to the roof and come in through the ceiling; to which John replied that he would do so; and being called upon, John appeared to answer from over the head of the cornice; he was desired to come into the room: but he hallowed how could he come in without a ladder, he was thus travelled to every angle and side of the room, and at length to the chimney, which he said was a good place at last. but after being in the chimney, he said he found it too narrow—and must be excused from soiling his clothes by going through that dirty passage. In all this dialogue, the characters and language were as distinct as any two individual characters could be to the ear.

He requested a gentleman to stand with him on the platform, and produced a most amusing and surprising effect. He personally addressed the gentleman, to know if he would take a glass of wine with him; the gentleman was about to answer for himself, but a voice apparently proceeded from the gentleman's stomach, answered "with pleasure sir" —the surprise of the gentleman and the audience were equal; for he had not time to open his lips, when he appeared to answer. Mr. Charles then requested permission to unbutton a few of the upper buttons of the gentleman's waistcoat—but before he could answer, the same voice from within answered "by all means, sir"—and a dialogue was now carried on, in which the two persons on the stage did not move a lip; and the voice from the stranger became louder as the buttons of the waistcoat were unloosed.

A dialogue between a physician and his sick patient followed, full of amusing and surprising variations of tone, in relation to the supposed condition and position of the patient.

A dialogue with a person supposed to be in the street, followed and concluded the evening's entertainment; during which the person in the street was required to come in through the window, when the window was opened and shut, and the voice appeared to come from the street; and to be under when the window was opened. There were some other very curious examples of this extraordinary faculty displayed; but what we have stated though far short of conveying the impression of what took place, will be found to be exceeded by the representation.

Indeed, so surprising is the perfection of this faculty, that among a superstitious people, he might be taken for a supernatural being and adored, or among others put to death as a wisard. Those days are passed, and Mr. Charles, with the manners of a gentleman, and a readiness of self possession that renders him very pleasing before an audience, presents an object of physical organization at once interesting to the philosopher and to the innocently curious.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, on Thursday, the 11th inst. a negro man, named DICK, who sometimes calls himself Dick Douglas. He is a small man about 5 feet 8 inches high, and is not a very black man. I purchased him from the estate of Edgar McCarty, esq. Cedar Grove, Fairfax county, Va. and it is likely that he may be lurking about that neighborhood or Colchester, as he has a wife at capt. Berry's of the latter place; or he may have gone to Loudoun county, as he has lived there in the neighborhood of Wm. McCarty and John McCarty, near Leesburg. He had on and took with him an old grey cloth coat and a brown do pantaloons of drab colored domestic cloth. He is much addicted to liquor, and is a coarse shoemaker. I will give 20 dollars if taken in the district of Columbia. Thirty dollars if taken in Fairfax county, and the above reward if apprehended in any other place, and secured so that I get him again; and reasonable charges if brought home. WM. B. STUART.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the subscriber living in King George's county Va. on Monday the 22nd March, a yellow man named about 22 years of age, his fore teeth wide apart, and cannot speak very quick—had on Virginia cloth clothes and carried off a shaggy great coat, he has a father named Peter Hall, who lives with the widow Morgan, at Oak Hill, Fauquier Co. and his grandfather, old Frederick Hall, is supposed to be living at Mr. Terrett's near Alexandria, and it is likely he may be lurking about there.—I will give the above reward for apprehending and securing said fellow so that I get him again, and reasonable charges if brought home. Masters of vessels and others are forewarned against harboring or carrying off said fellow tf June 14

JAMES,

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, living near Aldie, Loudoun county, Virginia, on the night of the 11th inst. a negro man, who calls his name NED BIAYS. He is a shrewd, intelligent negro, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high; 30 years of age, well made, active and polite. Had on when he went away, a sky colored coat, and corded pantaloons. His right eye sore, apparently occasioned by a blow, the blood having settled around it. His ears have been pierced, and had green silk in them when he went away. It is expected he is now lurking about Fairfax court-house and Aldie. The above Ned Biays ran away on the night of the 25th of last Aug and was caught on the 11th inst. on the night of which he effected his elopement by drawing the staple to which he was fastened by the handle of a pan, while there was no person in the kitchen but himself. He was caught on the 11th inst. a few miles below Aldie, but I think it improbable that he has gone near the same place again. I will give 100 dollars if he is taken out of the county, and fifty if taken in the county, and secured so that I get him again, and all reasonable charges if brought home. GEO. GULICK.
P. S. It is supposed that the said negro has obtained papers of freedom, or a free pass, or something of the kind. G. G.

100 Dollars Reward.

I WILL give the above reward to any person who will return to my possession, negro LAWRENCE, who assumes the surname of FENWICK. This fellow left my farm, on the Wicomico river, in Charles county, Md. on the 6th July, in consequence of his own outrageous conduct towards my overseer. He is a negro of a fine erect figure, good features, asmooth black skin, rather above the middle stature, of a youthful appearance for one of thirty years of age, and of great plausibility and natural smartness. His ears grow remarkably close to his head, and on the inside of his lower lip he has a white mark or spot. I purchased him 4 years ago of the estate of Mrs. P. H. Courts, of this county. I am led (by circumstances which have come to my knowledge since he absconded,) to believe that he will endeavor to make his way to King George county, Va.; should he not take this route, he will probably be met with in the District of Columbia, or in the upper counties of this state, on his way to Pennsylvania. I apprehend he will change his name, and if committed to jail, refuse to state to whom he belongs, as the misconduct which preceded his departure, & his absconding, have all appeared since to have been premeditated. He took all his clothes with him, of which he had a large number; among them—a new bearskin over-coat, a long close-bodied blue coat, a pair of striped jean pantaloons, one or more white waistcoats, besides many articles of coarse cloathing; these, however, he will probably exchange, or sell them for cash to defray his travelling expenses.
I will give the above reward to any person who will bring him home to me, or FIFTY DOLLARS if confined in jail, and notice given me, so that I recover him.—Should he be taken out of the state, I will also pay all reasonable costs and charges which may attend the bringing him home.
I. T. STODDERT,
West Hatton, near Allen's Fresh Post-Office, Charles county, Maryland.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY on the 25th of April last, a man called NED, formerly the property of Mr. Fitzhugh, of Fairfax, and by him sold to Hepburn & Dundas. He had on when he went away an old country blue and white cloth coat, and kersey trowsers—his right hand in a sling, in consequence of the kick of a horse. Ned is a stupid looking fellow, and hesitates very much when he speaks. I will give fifty dollars if apprehended in the District, or the above reward for apprehending him out of the District, so that I get him again.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.

All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them.
